Bruton Parish Church, Williamsburg, Virginia

Bruton Parish Church, completed in 1715, is a fine example of the colonial church in America. The walls and windows of the church are original, but much of the interior woodwork was torn out during the nineteenth century. The interior, partially restored in 1938, more completely in 1938, once again resembles its eighteenth-century appearance.

Hi-

The bad rain all time at Delobath beach, now went to Williamsburg, beautiful old Historia place. The seen what men who had faith in God such as Jefferson, Washington, John Smith & others accomplished.
Over there graves in there have come thru much tribulation from
